A Discipleship Movement

Have you ever thought about what it costs churches, financially, to bring a person to make a commitment to Christ?

In the US the cost can be well over a million dollars. In an Australian local church, it can be around $35, 000. The cost of a local outreach with Will Graham from the BGEA worked out to be over $700 per commitment.

This new discipleship model is built on relationships not Church institutions and is very cost effective. Though there is another cost involved.

Below is a link to a video entitled Chris Galanos - DMM Summit Plenary where Chris tells of commencing a fellowship in his home-town with 10 people in his lounge room. Ten years later they celebrated with 13,000 converts.

You can find it here: 37 minutes

There are also some great individually titled blog posts to read through here, with the story of the eLife Church and with the principles they have learned in their journey toward Disciple Making Movements (DMM).
